Anderson Lauds State Commission For Senior Projects

Better times for senior citizens were predicted by Governor Forrest H. Anderson when he addressed the second annual Governor's Conference on Aging held September 17-18 at the Florence Hotel in Missoula.

The Governor spoke at the conference annual banquet on September 17, when he was introduced by Barclay Craighead, Chairman of the Montana Commission on Aging. The governor stressed the need for expanded services for the state's 70,000 elderly residents.

"Fifty years ago for elderly persons without family or financial resources it was over the hill to the poorhouse," Governor Anderson said.

'Green Thumb' to Expand

Green Thumb, sponsored by the Montana Farmers Union, expanded in Montana this month with 72 jobs for Senior Citizens. Green Thumb is a U. S. Labor Department program designed to employ older workers with forestry or agricultural backgrounds.

Five counties selected for the initial stages of the Green Thumb beautification projects are Fergus, Cascade, Lewis and Clark, Powell and Silver Bow with Chouteau county as an alternate for the two seven-man crews per county.

Director's Report

by Lyle Downing

Reorganization of the Commission on Aging under a new state agency appears imminent, if the voters approve the proposals made by the Montana Commission on Executive Reorganization, which will be voted upon in the November election.

In our discussions with members of the Reorganization Commission, the present functions of the aging commission will be placed under a new department of social rehabilitation services.

If the voters do not approve the reorganization plan, some state officials believe it is doubtful whether it will be carried out in the next fiscal year.

Other agencies whose functions would be grouped with the Commission on Aging are the Board of Public Welfare, the Council on Human Resources, the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and Veterans Welfare. If the reorganization is approved and the legislation enacted, the reorganization committee has set a target date for July 1, 1971. The overall proposal of the Reorganization Commission is to reduce the number of state agencies to 18.

As explained at the Aging Commission meeting at Missoula on September 17, we are launching a program under which at least 10 "mini-centers" will be funded. The maximum amount of money which will be contributed to these "store-front" centers will be $1500 each. This money will have to be matched with $500 furnished by the sponsor for the first year.

We have already established two of these centers at Sidney and Roundup and have applications for several others. "Mini-centers" have been advocated by Chairman Barclay Craighead for a long time. He contends that our services for the elderly are largely confined to urban areas, and that isolated senior citizens in remote sections of the state have no facilities for social, educational, employment and recreational activities. We expect to fund another "mini-center" in Choteau within a few days.

The second annual Governor's Conference was highly successful in that it brought together approximately 500 senior citizens and representatives of private and public agencies interested in problems of the aging. We have received many letters and telephone calls from persons who participated, praising the program and the manner in which the conference was handled.

Governor Anderson told Chairman Craighead that he was greatly pleased with the big turnout for the conference banquet, September 17 in the Florence Hotel.

We regret very much that it was necessary to change the date of the next Commission meeting from December 18. However, Mr. Craighead and the director are required by the Administration on Aging to attend a national conference of state executives in Washington, D.C. during the week of December 6. We believe that it was a good idea to postpone the Commission meeting because important developments may come out of the Washington conference.

Form W-4P Now Available at Internal Revenue

Washington, D.C.—Retired persons will be able to avoid having to make quarterly payments of estimated tax to the Internal Revenue Service by the use of the new Form W-4P.

Form W-4P — Annuitant's Request for Federal Income Tax Withholding — is now available at IRS field offices. They should be filled out immediately.

Since companies paying out the annuities do not have to begin withholding until three months after Form W-4P is filed, retirees who want withholding to begin next January should file Form W-4P with the payer of annuities and pensions by October 1, 1970. Payers may begin withholding any time after they receive Form W-4P but not before January 1, 1971.

Form W-4P, Annuitant's Request for Federal Income Tax Withholding, should be filled out by the retiree and sent to the bank, insurance company or other payer from which he receives his annuity or pension payment.

The IRS said withholding must be in a whole-dollar amount and must be at least $5 a month. Withholding, however, cannot reduce below $10 the amount of pension or annuity payment which the retired person receives.

The firm making the payment is required to withhold income tax if the retiree requests that it be done. However, withholding is optional on the part of the retiree.

The withholding provisions do not apply to annuities that are wholly exempt from Federal taxation, such as social security benefits and Veterans Administration pensions.

"That has changed. It must be admitted that the pace was slow as federal, state and local governments dealt with the problems of the aging. The turning point came 35 years ago when the Social Security Act was signed into law by our late President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The next important forward step was in 1965 when the Older Americans Act became law.

"Under this law", the governor continued, "the Montana Commission on Aging, a statutory agency, was set up by the Legislature. The commission is composed of 15 dedicated Montanans who have been working under severe handicaps, due to lack of funds, to finance projects. However, the commission has established 16 senior centers in the state and has funded numerous other training, employment and educational projects."

He's Encouraged

Anderson said he was encouraged by the splendid cooperation now existing between state agencies dealing with problems of the aging. Twenty-four agencies are banded together in the Montana Council on Human Resources.

"I hope," the governor concluded, "through the Commission on Aging this state will come up with a comprehensive presentation of needs of older people to be presented at the 1971 White House Conference on Aging. There are more than 20 million senior citizens in the national population, and Montana should have a major part in planning for their future."

Another banquet speaker was Merrill E. Groelle, Washington, D.C., associate director of the American Association of Retired Persons. Groelle said statistics and experience indicate "the post-55-age period is a healthier one than ever before in the history of man.

"Each succeeding generation of aging is retiring with a higher educational background, more retirement income, greater mobility and greater expectations," he said.

Groelle added that half of the people over 65 are under 73 and do not look upon themselves as aged.

Teamwork Urged

James R. Burress, Denver, regional commissioner Social Rehabilitation Service, HEW, spoke at a luncheon September 18. He urged state agencies to combine forces with federal programs set up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to give the elderly the assistance they require.

Ray L. Schwartz, Associate Coordinator for regional and state activity, White House Conference on Aging, speaking at the luncheon, stated: "What comes out of the White House Conference will be what the President recommends to Congress for bettering the lot of senior citizens," he said.

Lieut. Gov. Thomas L. Judge also addressed the Governor's luncheon. He stated: "The Montana Commission on Aging has done a good job of administering over $400,000 in federal grants to finance social, employment and recreation programs for the state's senior citizens. The state's 16 senior citizen centers now operating offer rare opportunities for older people to create for themselves a rewarding life in retirement."

The conference opened on September 17th with a general session directed by Theodore Carkulis, Montana Department of Public Welfare Administrator. He was assisted by a panel of experts on problems of the aging, including Clinton Hess, Denver, Colorado, associate regional commissioner for aging; Jack Carver, director of Montana Division of Vocational Rehabilitation; Dr. Morton L. Arkava, associate professor, Department of Sociology and Social Welfare of the University of Montana, and Mrs. Ruth E. Pike, Assistant to the regional director, U. S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Seattle, Washington.

The conference closed with a Town Hall meeting, at which more than 400 senior citizens were given an opportunity to question a discussion panel which was presided over by Dr. Gordon Browder, director of the Institute for Social Science Research, University of Montana, and Dr. I. W. Evans, chairman of the Department of Sociology and Social Welfare at the university.

Conference Quiz Airs Problems Of Elderly Persons

One of the highlights of the Governor's Conference on Aging, September 17-18, in Missoula, was the Town Hall Meeting conducted by Dr. Idris Evans, University of Montana sociologist.

Dr. Evans, who supervised a statewide senior citizen survey for the Montana Commission on Aging, gave elderly participants in the conference an opportunity to question a panel of experts on various aspects of the aging problem. Many senior citizens and professional workers in the aging field responded.

Mrs. Roberta Lee, Missoula Nursing Home administrator, declared that the shut-ins in nursing homes are being neglected.

"I am discouraged about what I have heard at this meeting because you folks have completely forgotten one segment of the aging population," she said. "I am referring to the people who cannot come to such meetings as this one. You senior citizens who are able to get out could have one of the most rewarding experiences in your life by going to these people and doing something with them and not for them."

Mrs. Lee was a delegate to the first White House Conference on Aging ten years ago.

Frank Brutto, Hamilton, whose wife is coordinator of the O'Hara House Senior Center in that community, countered with the statement that nursing home residents and other elderly shut-ins are taken regularly to the Hamilton Center and participate in the activities.

One question which was frequently raised by the conference participants was the lack of transportation for senior citizens.

Miss Joan Duncan, coordinator for senior citizen activities for the Rocky Mountain Development Council of Helena, said that under the Model Cities Program buses have been purchased to transport older persons.

Referendum 67 will be voted up or down by senior citizens

Dale Harris, administrative assistant to the Montana Constitution Revision Committee, called attention to the role Senior Citizens will play in the discussions this fall of constitutional revision and Referendum 67 to call a constitutional convention.

Experience has shown that over one-fourth of the people who vote in elections do not vote on ballot questions.

Over 84 per cent of all persons over 65 are registered and are twice as likely to go to the polls and vote as are the youngsters under 25 years of age, Harris said.

There are few precincts in Montana where the Senior Citizen does not constitute 10 per cent of the vote.—The average is closer to 20 per cent.

Time and experience has exposed the imperfections, inequalities and the need for new safeguards in Montana's 81 year old constitution.

Claude D. Williams, a commissioner on the Commission on Aging and also a member of the Constitutional Convention Committee, said that speakers and material on the Montana Constitution will be available county-by-county on a private, non-partisan basis.

The Mellotones with their new director, Earl Walton (right), entertained at the luncheon. Their barbershop harmonies and gloves which were embroidered to look like eyes were very appealing to the seniors at the conference.
